Decision needed

THE Chairman of the Hongkong Electric Company has registered a protest against Government's freeze on dividends and assets. Government's reasons for doing this are not disputed. It was essential to make this order following the recommendations of the Commission of Inquiry. But this cannot go on indefinitely. The company quite rightly points out that its ability to operate as a public company is affected.

What Mr Tagg was in effect saying was that a decision on the Commission's recommendations must be made soon. The HK Electric Company gives no public hint of a compromise on its stand made during the Commission's hearings, which was nationalisation or nothing. Indeed it amputates this by saying that if Government decides on the former, the proposed terms of compensation are inadequate. Its chief objection is to the issue of fixed-interest stock to former shareholders. And there can be no question that this is, to use Mr Tagg's words, an "inequitable" exchange. If the Electricity Authority is to replace the two electric companies, shareholders must be compensated in cash.

THE hope is that Government repudiates the idea of a takeover. As Mr Michael Turner said at this afternoon's Hongkong and Shanghai Bank meeting, there is no reason to suppose that the creation of an authority would mean lower rates to the consumer. And we must repeat that private enterprise with minimum Government control to ensure certain improvements suggested by the Commission should be able to meet Hongkong's needs.

At the moment there is no indication of a move either by Government or the electric companies to follow up the Commission's report. Logically the next step should come from Government. The electricity companies have said their piece. The Commission has spoken and its recommendations have been passed to those who ordered the inquiry. Some clear statement of intentions therefore must come from Government soon. This is what the electric companies, shareholders and consumers are eagerly waiting for.

New market

THE return of Dr S. N. Chau from Australia and his call for the establishment of a trade office there as soon as possible should win the enthusiastic support of local traders and manufacturers. Import restrictions which have prevented a much-needed trade drive into this area have recently been removed.

Australia has shown a close and growing interest in things Oriental and it should not take long for Hongkong to establish a worthwhile foothold down under. It would be a pity if any one group of manufacturers monopolised our exports.

This country promises to provide a valuable new field of enterprise and Hongkong should by now have learnt from the mistakes of over-concentration of exports in Britain, America and Europe. Goodwill is an important thing to establish at the outset. This should be our aim in penetrating this market.

Annual meeting of Hongkong and Shanghai Bank WARNING ON HK'S ECONOMY

Mr Turner's comments on quotas and tariffs

The Chairman of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, Mr Michael W. Turner, today issued a warning to people who thought that Hongkong's present economic expansion must inevitably continue.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Bank this afternoon Mr Turner said Hongkong was very dependent for its prosperity on selling its manufactured products.

MR M. W. TURNER

The best customers were likely to be those countries with the highest standards of living.

"It is therefore inevitable that, where those markets are, higher wage structures are to be found and many of the products exported from Hongkong offer serious competition to domestic industries," he said.

"This has resulted in pressure being experienced for voluntary quotas or outright tariffs to limit the volume."

"Most governments today are deeply concerned at the prospect of possible unemployment and are unlikely to sit by and see this develop without making some attempt to stop it."

PROGRESS

Mr Turner said he felt that the dangers inherent in this present situation were not sufficiently appreciated in Hongkong.

He said on the other hand overseas countries should also remember that Hongkong was a small manufacturing unit which could only survive and find employment for its growing population if it was enabled to market its products which "even now, account for only a small proportion of the total consumption of any importing country."

Mr Turner said although there was considerable scope for further diversification a certain amount of progress had been made.

He quoted ship-breaking as an example of a new major industry and said that other new enterprises would manufacture air-conditioners, precision instruments and transistor radios.

A BREAK

Speaking on the Commission of Enquiry into the electricity industry Mr Turner said there was no reason to suppose that the proposed Electricity Authority, suggested by the Commission, would be able to charge lower rates than the companies which it would replace.

Mr Turner said acceptance of this recommendation would be a complete break with the Colony's traditional method of leaving public utilities to private enterprise, under conditions imposed by the Government.

"It would also be difficult for the shareholders of the companies to dispose of their Government stock except at a discount due to the known dislike of the Hongkong investor for fixed interest securities."

"I hope that a compromise will be found which will give both consumers and shareholders the protection they should have but leave the undertakings under their present management." — Reuter.

Big international gang of jewel thieves smashed

London, Mar. 11. An international gang of jewel thieves reported to be directly responsible for the disappearance of a million dollar consignment of diamonds to Hongkong, has been smashed.

This was revealed by the man responsible for smashing the gang.

It is Mr T. B. Miller, of a London firm of Assessors, who has just returned after carrying out an investigation into the theft of diamonds valued at over £100,000 from freight carried by Bond and Pan American aircraft.

With him Mr Miller brought back £80,000 of recovered jewels. His inquiries have resulted in the recovery of jewels and other property valued at hundreds of pounds sterling.

Meanwhile in Teheran the Persian police have arrested several people believed to be members of the gang.

Unravelled

The Daily Telegraph today describes how Mr Miller, together with Mr Douglas Buchanan, a Boac security officer, played a prominent part in Teheran in unravelling a Middle East network of international theft.

They first learned of the gang when a small bag containing seven packets of diamonds disappeared en route to Hongkong from Antwerp jewellers via Pan American Airways.

Then a second bag containing 13 packets of diamonds disappeared while carried by Boac to Hongkong from Tel Aviv. The investigators found their clue in the second theft.

They directed their investigations in Teheran when they discovered that both bags had been handled at the Teheran airport. — Reuter.

IKE'S

Washington, Mar. 10. The Soviet Premier Mr Khrushchev has a de luxe, sound-proof helicopter just like President Eisenhower's.

Mr Khrushchev had a flight in the Presidential copter when he visited the United States recently.

Now Russia has bought four American helicopters for use by Mr Khrushchev and his top aides.

Mr Vladimir Alkhimov, the Embassy's commercial counsellor, said the helicopters cost about $2 million (about £74,000), including spare parts.

One of the helicopters, he said, was a duplicate of the de luxe sound-proof model used by President Eisenhower.

"We have our own helicopters, but you started earlier on them. For reasons of safety, your helicopters are much better than ours," Mr Alkhimov said. — Reuter.

Pilotless plane crashes

Carlsbad, Mar. 10. A pilotless Royal Air Force jet fighter crashed into a field near here yesterday 20 yards behind a farm worker.

Pieces of the plane whistled past the man, 20-year-old David Glendinning, as it disintegrated. Some landed within two yards of his tractor.

The pilot and navigator, who had baled out before the plane hit the ground, landed unharmed at a farm about two miles away. Mr Glendinning was badly shaken but unharmed. — China Mail Special.

Kuala Lumpur, Mar. 10. The 12-year campaign against the Communists in Malaya has cost a total of 11,000 lives, it was announced here tonight.

Of these, 6,703 were Communists, 2,473 planters and civilians, and 1,000 members of the security forces. — AP.

WEEKEND OUTING FOR QUEEN AND BABY PRINCE

London, Mar. 10. The Queen will take her first outing this weekend since her baby was born three weeks ago, it was learned tonight.

They expect her to drive with the infant Prince to spend the weekend at Windsor Castle. In line with Royal custom, no name for the baby Prince has yet been announced nor any photograph published. These events will come in time for the christening within two weeks.

The Queen is already receiving occasional callers at Buckingham Palace. This morning she talked with Lord Scarbrough, who brought addresses of congratulation on the birth from both Houses of Parliament.

In her reply to Parliament the Queen said:

"I thank you most sincerely for your loyal and dutiful address on the occasion of the birth of my third child."

"The assurance of your joy and your constant affectionate concern for our well-being have deeply moved my husband and me and have added to our happiness in the birth of our second son." — AP.

ARMS BOUND AND GAGGED, BUT RITA CHASED ROBBERS

by a China Mail reporter

A courageous 15-year-old girl chased after three burglars yesterday even though she was gagged and her hands were tied behind her back.

The girl was tied up when three men, pretending to be plumbers, entered a Kowloon City flat and ransacked it.

"It's in the water closet; they left 15 minutes later, taking a radio and several hundred dollars."

The girl was Rita Chiu Ling, 15-year-old daughter of Mr T. C. Fung, senior state member of the Far East Oxygen and Acetylene Company in To Kwa Wan, Kowloon.

She chased after them when they left 15 minutes later, taking a radio and several hundred dollars.

The door opened. In came the three men. They went straight to the bathroom where they stayed for about five minutes.

Then one of them came out and said to the girl, "We have found it. Please come in to have a look so that we can start repairing."

Tied up

In she went.

The three tied her up with cloth and rope they had brought along. She shouted loudly.

Fearing she would attract attention one of them gagged her.

The girl pooped through the spy-hole in the door and asked them, "Who are you looking for?"

Pipes, they said

The landlord told us to come here to repair some bathroom pipes," one of them replied.

"But there is nothing wrong with our plumbing," said the girl.

Britain short of aircraft?

London, Mar. 10. Iraq today banned the memoirs of Sir Anthony Eden, British Prime Minister during the 1956 Suez crisis, and ordered the confiscation of all copies of the book.

A Ministry of Guidance order gave these reasons for the ban.

★ "The author defends crumbling British imperialism;

★ "Attacks cruelly and falsely the immortal July 14 revolution, its leader, General Abdel Karim Kassem, the Iraqi Republic and freedom movements in the greater Arab homeland;

★ "Defends the former leaders and Royal family of the excommunicated Iraqi regime;

★ "Indicates traitors and spies from among the followers of imperialism, inside and outside the country, to work against the immortal Iraqi Republic." — Reuter.

He was complaining during a House of Lords debate on defence that the Royal Air Force was "deliberately starved" of transport planes.

Speaking of Suez, Lord Hardinge said Sir Anthony Eden had written in his memoirs of a shortage of paratroopers. But the shortage — and of aircraft — was crippling — war or aircraft. — Reuter.

BB IS NOT AMUSED

Paris, Mar. 10. The Seine Tribunal today turned down Brigitte Bardot's demand that the Charrier Bottled Water Co. remove big advertising posters which pose the question "Does baby like Charrier?"

Brigitte argued that the slogan suggests all is not well between her and her husband, Jacques Charrier. In French the word for baby is pronounced like the letters "BB," which every Bardot fan knows stands for Brigitte Bardot.

The tribunal said there is no urgency to get the posters down, because the Charrier Company has added a picture of a plump little baby and a bottle of water to its advertisements. Now, the tribunal said, there is no reason to think the slogan refers to Brigitte and Jacques Charrier.

WEEKLY REPORT ON THE HONGKONG STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET CLOSES MIXED

*Record turnovers
but little
price changes*

Despite a record turnover for the week of $28 million the market closed mixed with prices, except in two or three instances, changing fractionally.

With the announcement of a $2 dividend and an $8 bonus, Kowloon Docks rose by 10c.

Two other stocks came in for sharp rises. They were Telephones and Textiles. The former on a more speculative scale while the latter came in for good buying demand.

In Stores, Durries after a steady rise during the week came off at the close on a spate of profit-taking.

Watsons remained steady at around $26.50 although demand was lacking. Lane, Crawfords eased on lack of support.

Interest in utilities appeared to lessen with the exception of Telephones which came in for a sudden rise on good demand. They closed at $38.75—a rise of $3.50 on the week.

Both the ferry companies were fractionally lower due to mid-week profit-taking.

Banks and Unions weakened.

Textiles and Nanyangs both improved on the week. Textiles passed the $10 mark and buyers appeared to be unsatisfied.

Profit-taking, although in excess failed to dent the market and any spate of selling was easily absorbed.

Brokers feel confident that the market will continue firm with possibly still higher turnovers. Prices are expected to remain steady.

REVIEW OF EVENTS IN ASIA

CHINA

Speaking on China, Mr Turner said disputes with India and Indonesia and events in Tibet would seem to indicate a more aggressive policy. But this was not born out by the lack of activity in other areas of possible conflict.

"On the whole, it seems more likely that her main preoccupation during the past year has been not with foreign policy but with her internal affairs," Mr Turner said.

"The speed with which China is planning to increase her industrial potential is bound to result in stresses and strains but any modifications in policy or practice introduced to relieve these should be viewed as temporary expedients and not in any sense as a weakening in intention to drive forward or a change in the broad direction of the economy."

Mr Turner said that there was little doubt that industrial production had shown a marked increase last year and considerable attention had been devoted to improve the transport system.

The stability of the internal purchasing value of the currency had been one of the most successful achievements of the present Government but of late, there have been signs that the supply of money had outrun the quantity of goods available for purchase and efforts had been made to combat this by raising the price of what were considered unessential commodities and by an active drive for savings, Mr Turner added.

JAPAN

Speaking on Japan, he said that last year had been one of the most prosperous in the post-war period. The volume of foreign trade had expanded considerably.

There was a rapid recovery in banking and investment problems. The index of industrial production had proceeded at a slower pace.

A number of new industrial projects however, aimed at conserving foreign exchange would go some way towards rectifying the present unfavourable balance of payment.

Mr Turner said a bumper rice crop was forecast for 1960.

Reporting on Cambodia, Mr Turner said the five year development plan for the diversification and improvement of agricultural production and a modest programme of industrialisation had been drawn up.

had considerably increased her export markets. The textile industry had continued to expand and exports had held up well in spite of restrictions in a number of countries.

This year's rice crop was expected to be the largest ever recorded and it was being predicted that in the not too distant future, Japan would be self-sufficient in production.

PHILIPPINES

Speaking on the Philippines, Mr Turner said there had been a marked improvement in the economy during the year with the achievement of self-sufficiency in corn and rice, an excellent sugar crop and a reported favourable balance of trade for the first time since the war.

Inflationary pressures had been halted to some extent but there was very little sign that Government expenditure was being seriously reduced.

Mr Turner added in general the President seemed satisfied with the present state of the economy and "even if there is still a number of disturbing features the outlook seems more promising than for some time past."

VIETNAM

Mr Turner said there had been signs of expansion in the Vietnamese economy during the year but while progress had been maintained in agricultural developments, industrial development had proceeded at a slower pace.

A number of new industrial projects however, aimed at conserving foreign exchange would go some way towards rectifying the present unfavourable balance of payment.

Mr Turner said a bumper rice crop was forecast for 1960.

Reporting on Cambodia, Mr Turner said the five year development plan for the diversification and improvement of agricultural production and a modest programme of industrialisation had been drawn up.

This was intended to reduce the country's dependence on foreign aid.

THAILAND

Speaking on Thailand, Mr Turner said anti-inflationary measures had some success but an adverse effect on revenue as many of the price cuts imposed were suffered by Government monopolies.

Increased exports for rubber, tin and maize had offset the disappointing exports of rice. This year's rice harvest was expected to be good but competition in world markets was expected to result in further price cuts.

Mr Turner said the setting-up of a national council for economic development and an industrial finance corporation in which the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank and the Mercantile Bank had agreed to participate by subscribing towards the initial capital, was indicative of the continued efforts being made to encourage industrial development.

MALAYA

Speaking on Malaya, Mr Turner said the progress of the first five year development plan was retarded in the early years by lack of funds but the improved financial position, together with a further installment of the Brunei Government loan, loans from the United States development fund and assistance from the United Nations will enable the Government to undertake the expenditure of about $250 million during 1960.

This would mean that the plan would be implemented to a greater extent than seemed likely two years ago.

He said the increased world demand for rubber and tin had benefited all sections of the Malayan economy.

SINGAPORE

Mr Turner said that the new Singapore Government, composed of energetic young men, had a well disciplined party behind it.

It was hoped this would be able to give Singapore the firm vigorous government needed in dealing with the many problems likely to arise during the first years of the new state's evolution.

"It should have been obvious that such a draconian measure

Trading conditions generally were quiet during the first half of 1959 but the sharp rise in the rubber price brought increased business during the second half.

There had been a decline in entrepot trading mainly to Indonesia.

Mr Turner said in spite of hopes expressed for rapid industrialisation commerce was likely to be the mainstay of the economy for some years to come. Manufacturing was hampered by Singapore's small market and labour costs which were higher than Hong Kong's and Japan's.

BORNEO

Speaking on North Borneo, Mr Turner said a development programme had been drawn up for the next five years involving expenditure of $1870 million. The main emphasis would be on roads, harbours and air-fields.

Finance would be provided from colonial development and welfare funds, local revenue and loans.

INDIA

Speaking on India, Mr Turner said that the bank's profit amounted to more than $28 million or $4.5 million more than previous year's. This profit included the Mercantile Bank dividend.

No dividend had yet been received from the British Bank of the Middle East and a payment of a final dividend on these shares was in effect part of the purchase consideration.

It was proposed that $4 million should again be written off on Bank Premises. Dividends absorbed more than $15 million, leaving a balance of more than $2 million to be carried forward next year.

The reserve fund had increased by more than $47 million. Hongkong currency notes in circulation increased by $64 million because of a rise in the Excess Note Issue.

deterioration in the economy and little attention had been paid to the ten year development plan.

Fortunately, the production and export of tea which contributed more than 60 per cent of export income had continued at a high level and better prices were obtained during the second half of the year.

Speaking on Mauritius, Mr Turner said the five year programme which was approved in 1958 was now gathering momentum and imports of machinery and building material showed a steady increase. Textile imports on the other hand had been lower.

PROFIT

In conclusion, Mr Turner said to effect a cure unless it were to be followed up by a reduction in Government expenditure and of this there has been no sign," said Mr Turner.

The cost of living continued steadily upwards and by January it had risen to such an extent that the Government announced measures to impose price controls.

It is hardly surprising that under such conditions our office in Jakarta has had a difficult year and the recent directive that oil foreign trade should come under Government control will undoubtedly add to the difficulties under which we operate."

INDIA

Speaking on India, Mr Turner said that the economy showed general signs of improvement as the capital investment of the past few years bore fruit.

Industrial production began to move forward and it seemed likely that the second five year plan targets would be achieved.

Although there was an improvement in the level of foreign reserves, it was unlikely there would be any major release of the stringent import controls.

Mr Turner said that total output of food grains showed a substantial increase but this had little effect on food prices which increased sharply.

PAKISTAN

Speaking on Pakistan, Mr Turner said the economic position had benefited from the better administration introduced by President Ayub Khan.

The collection of overdue taxes had helped the revenue, inflation had been checked and the balance of payments had shown a steady improvement.

More encouragement was being given to oil refinement from abroad and an oil refinery was being established in Karachi by a consortium composed of British and American oil companies.

Mr Turner said, however, the country continued to be dependent on almost unhealthy exten-tion of foreign aid while self-sufficiency in food production would take some time to achieve.

BURMA

Speaking on Burma, Mr Turner said the entry of quasi-government bodies into commerce had been a feature of business conditions for some time passed.

During the year, a further development had been the increased participation of the Army which had turned its attention to a number of trading activities including a bank and a shipping line.

"The position of foreign trading companies would in fact be made almost untenable if, following the introduction of the export incentive scheme for indigenous exporters, the order that import licences would only be issued to Burmese nationals comes into force in June," he said.

"Under these circumstances it is doubtful whether the Foreign Investment Act, designed to offer attractive terms to foreign investors, will have a great deal of appeal unless private enterprise is accorded more consideration than it has had hitherto."

The report and accounts were adopted.

Mr G. M. Goldsack, Mr W. C. G. Knowles and Mr L. Kadourie were re-elected direc-

COMING AND GOING

Mr D. F. Cooper, Cathay Pacific Airways Representative in Australia, left on Cathay's Orient Jet flight for Sydney yesterday.

Mr Cooper who was accompanied by his wife was in Hongkong to attend the C.P.A. Annual Traffic & Sales conference which was held at the Gloucester Hotel.

Captain K. Steele, Operations Manager of Cathay Pacific Airways, left on Cathay's Oriental Jet flight for Sydney yesterday. Capt Steele will spend two weeks in Australia before returning to the Colony.

Paul Flannery, 9-year-old Melbourne boy, who recently won the "Ferry to Hong Kong" elogue competition, left with his mother on Cathay Pacific Airways flight for Sydney yesterday.

She is Miss Joan Manning, television, radio and nightclub star who at present is on a working holiday in Hongkong.

Miss Manning has won the hearts of dozens of young street urchins, by her daily afternoon singing, dancing and guitar lessons.

Under the scrutiny of many disapproving stares Miss Manning conducts her lessons usually in busy North Point park.

Miss Manning wins the hearts of HK urchins

By Steve Dunleavy

If a fair young Irish colleen has her way, half a dozen singing and dancing stars will be produced in the near future from a group of Chinese children at North Point.

Paul Flannery, 9-year-old Melbourne boy, who recently won the "Ferry to Hong Kong" elogue competition, left with his mother on Cathay Pacific Airways flight for Sydney yesterday.

She is Miss Joan Manning, television, radio and nightclub star who at present is on a working holiday in Hongkong.

Miss Manning has won the hearts of dozens of young street urchins, by her daily afternoon singing, dancing and guitar lessons.

Under the scrutiny of many disapproving stares Miss Manning conducts her lessons usually in busy North Point park.

FEW WEEKS AGO

"It all started a few weeks ago when I was walking home from my children's television programme," she said.

"A little boy approached me and indicated that he had seen me on television.

"The next day when I left for the studio I saw him again but this time he was with half a dozen friends.

"For about a week I kept bumping into the group of children.

"One Sunday afternoon I decided to give the kids something to do with their time so I brought my guitar down to the park and played to them.

"The following Sunday I came down and there was at least a dozen children gathered around ready for a concert.

"Because they seemed to get such a thrill out of it I decided to put about 10 to 15 minutes in, entertaining them," she added.

SHOCK

But Joan got the shock of her life after one regular reported in excellent English one of her songs. "Some of them can even strum little tunes on the guitar," she said.

"The amazing part about them is that they learn so fast. If I show them something once they know it immediately," Miss Manning added.

Miss Manning formerly a chemistry student has been in show business for the last four and a half years. She has been doing nightclub and television work while in Hongkong.

"If I had my way I'd live in Hongkong all my life. And you could bet your life that I would have produced a few young stars within a couple of years."

Desert exercise

London, Mar. 10. A Royal Air Force Comet left Lympsham today for El Alten with senior Army and RAF staff officers who will direct a joint exercise in the North African desert.

Exercise "Starlight" is the biggest combined Army-Air Force exercise to be held outside Britain.

During the next 10 days, Transport Command is flying out 4,000 troops and 130 vehicles.

The exercise will last from March 21 to March 28.—China Mail Special.

AIR REPORTER PETER WOON FLIES IN THE 'SKY-BUS'

THE WORLD BEATER

It's faster than jets on short journeys

BRITAIN'S latest, biggest airliner, the Vanguard, sped into Le Bourget Airport last week — a king-size successor to the famous Viscount and one that can become the sky-bus of the world.

The red-winged Vanguard is fast, large, comfortable and cheap to fly — a plane to inspire a vision of age of mass air travel.

Her running costs are low. So low, say Vickers, the makers, that she could slash European fares by up to half.

B.E.A. will introduce the prop-jet Vanguard on the London-Paris route in July, minimum night return £160.

As the first to fly in her, I can report:

SPEED: Just 56 minutes (London-Le Bourget), long-range Britannia. The centre cabin of the three in the Vanguard is alone as large as a Viscount's fuselage.

Fill her up in London, take on 100 passengers, and she will call at Frankfurt and Vienna on the way to Prague without another stop.

COMFORT: For six-abreast, sky-bus seating, this is the most spacious airliner I have seen. It is only just a little short of luxurious.

High over the French fields I walked on to the flight deck—itsself a pilot's dream—and talked to the Vickers chief test pilot, Jock Bryce,

The power

Neatly he summed up his airliner's appeal: "She's a very good air charabanc," he said.

And on the colossal power of her four outsize Rolls-Royce Tynes, the most advanced prop-jets in the world, she "motors" beautifully and astonishingly quickly.

But on the manufacturing side there are some difficulties. Only 40 have been bought so far—20 for B.E.A. and 20 for Trans-Canada Airlines.

More orders are urgently needed. The makers say the biggest need now is for cheap-flying—in fact, a skybus.

Not for several years are the pure jets to be able to match the Vanguard type of economy on short-haul routes.

HOW SCIENCE IS HELPING THE SPY . . .

IT happened in neutral Geneva. Diplomats by the dozen had moved in for a conference on the Far East. The suite in the Hotel Beau Rivage — for many years the favourite lodge of the British — was as plush, ornate and befitting a foreign secretary, as ever. The year: peace-time, 1954.

Then the security men went to work. The lesson they gave is described by Sir Anthony Eden in his memoirs like this: "Peeping Toms and flapping ears have gadgets never thought of when I was in Geneva before."

"I was soon warned of this and told that if I proposed to hold meetings in my sitting-room, as I had always done, I must expect our discussions to be overheard."

Walls have ears, the old war-time posters warned. Today, almost anything has.

One tiny component, often no bigger than a match-head, has created paradise for the spy and caused a revolution in security planning.

It is the transistor. Although it was discovered 10 years ago, only recently have scientists perfected ways to make it do all the jobs of a valve, in a fraction of the space.

BEAMED

A radio transmitter now goes into a matchbox, or a packet of 20 cigarettes. A simple sputter can hold it in place under a chair or desk.

Or leave it on a table, with a few matches showing for authenticity, and it will transmit for a whole day on one battery. The new model is now being made to shirt-pocket size.

The latest technique dispenses with batteries altogether. Power to work the device can be beamed from a bigger transmitter elsewhere. The "matchbox" simply absorbs and stores some of it like a cat's whisker and crystal in reverse.

Such instruments have short range. But a pocket transmitter, with a thin aerial running down the trouser leg, can broadcast clear conversations for more than a quarter of a mile. The BBC uses them. So does Prince Philip, for TV. Cost?—between £25 and £150. Nothing to a spy.

The microphone is no longer recognisable. It is made into a watch, a button-hole flower, an ash-tray or a light-fitting.

The recorder costs £75. The Gestapo built its prototype.

TV CAMERA

Remember those old thriller films where the eyes of the portraits on the wall suddenly moved? They do today with a TV monitoring camera behind. It measures as little as 3in across, and can be remotely controlled, focused, moved, or switched to close-up, from any distance away.

Banks have started to use larger versions to compare the signature on a cheque with specimens held in a central pool at head office. So have gold-mines, to prevent pilfering of precious dust.

The camera, too, can be made to fit a button-hole, although a more elaborate version is needed for work on documents or secret files.

Some idea of the mystery which even the peacockine spy has of photographic techniques came to light with dramatic suddenness in September last year.

The Home Office deported Jerzy Florczykowski, a 22-year-old Polish student at Imperial College for passing information through the Iron Curtain in microdots—messages reduced to full-stop size, which can be sent in an innocent letter and enlarged clearly later.

The telephone-tapper has little fear of discovery, either. The old days of fiddling with the junction boxes down in the basement are over.

Now he can attach a three-inch square box to any part of the system, or just simply place a "magnetic pick-up" within three feet of the line. The magnetic current set up by electricity in the wires "carries" that for, and with it comes the conversation.

A new face means a new life for 200

Detroit, Michigan.

PLASTIC surgeons have given new faces to 200 convicts in the Detroit House of Correction to help them make a new start in life after their release.

Some of the inmates who were given "second faces" had accidents. The plastic surgeon erased "dozens of scars" from their faces and the man who became a law-abiding citizen again.

"The results have been more encouraging than anyone ever dreamed," said Dr Maurice Fisch, chief of rehabilitation at the prison.

Scarred

"We find that appearances do have a definite effect on personality. In many cases the correction of defects changes the inmate's entire outlook on life."

For example:

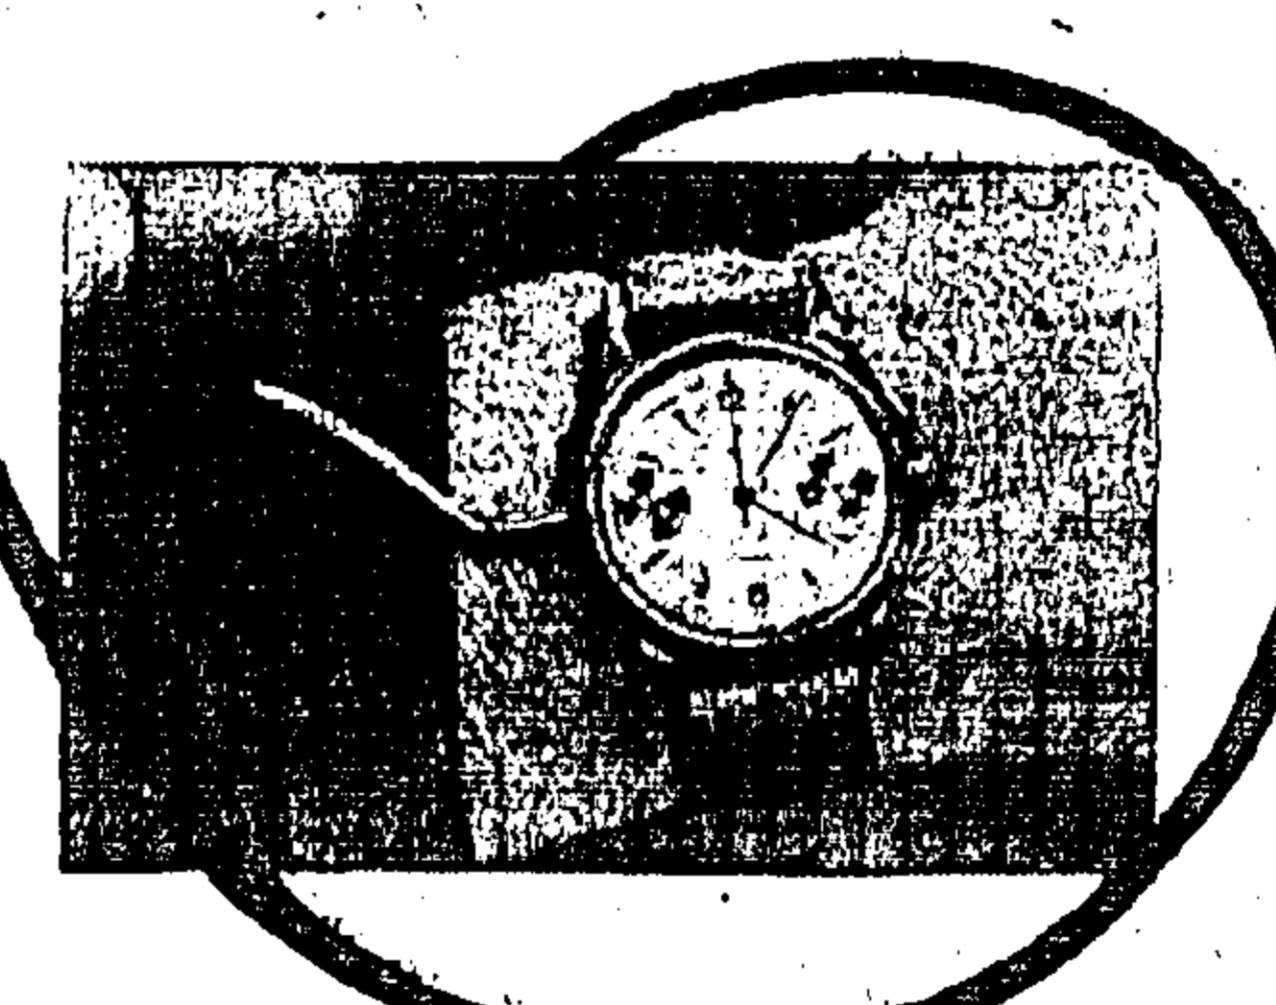

• A man had suddenly turned to a life of crime after his face

—(London Express Service).

WATCHES HAVE EARS . . .

• A wristwatch microphone at work: it broadcasts clear conversations for more than a quarter of a mile—or records them in the breast-pocket.

How can we protect ourselves from all these terrifying incidents? Sir Anthony Eden says he was told to thump the conference table to confuse unwell listeners. But he adds: "As a result, we must have come listeners. But he adds: "As a result, we must have only trouble was while I was attentive to this important moment, and only once at first, I was apt to forget it when I became absorbed in discussion."

—(London Express Service).

SCHOOLBOYS HELP MAJOR RESEARCH

SPHAEROMA SERRATA is half an inch long. Blaberus Craniifer measures two inches. The first is a water-louse, the second a cockroach. Nasty, insignificant creatures? Yes. But both are creating unusual interest—often excitement—under microscopes at two London schools.

And they are just two of a host of original research projects starting up in schools across the whole of Britain. So worthy is this enthusiasm supplies of cockroaches, plus among masters and pupils, that among masters and pupils, that the august Royal Society is backing it with more than £100,000 a year.

Mr Screen told me: "These cockroaches grow in a series of jerks. We are trying to find out how their organs develop during this process. Hardly anything has been published on them."

Both projects, and those at 40 other schools, are now getting grants from the society to buy apparatus.

Winchester is studying moss; Marlborough, enzymes; St Edmundsbury School at Watford; vitamin B 12 in our diet; Southgate County Grammar, reproduction of reptiles; Tonbridge, expansion of plastics; St John's, Leatherhead radioactive isotopes.

Mr C. A. Ronan, secretary of the society's special committee on research in schools, explained: "We consider this work of immense value. It vitalizes science teaching and public interest. It may have a long-term effect on recruiting science masters."

From time to time I shall shall report details of these projects. For out of little beginnings big truths often emerge. And what happens in a school sets the tempo for what happens in a nation.

Merlin Goes Touring

—Magic Moves Faster Than A Jet Plane—

By MAX TRELL

"I WISH," Knarf, the Shadow Boy, was saying to his sister, Handi, "that we could go far, far away."

"Like where?" asked Handi.

Just then there was a sound of footsteps. The next moment Mr Merlin, the Magnificent Magician, came out from behind the bookcase. He was dressed in a grey suit. He wore a cap and heavy shoes. He carried a suitcase.

Let's go!

"Well, come along!" he said to Knarf and Handi.

They looked at him in surprise when he spoke.

" Didn't I just hear you say you wanted to go far, far away? Come along and we'll go!"

At this Knarf and Handi both said at once, "Will you really take us somewhere, Mr Merlin?"

"Certainly," said Mr Merlin. "A Magnificent Magician like I am can take you any place in the world."

"For instance," he said, "how would you like to go riding in the desert on a Camel?"

Almost before Knarf and Handi had time to reply that they would like nothing better than to go riding on a Camel in the desert, Mr Merlin snapped his fingers.

There was a puff of smoke in the air. When it cleared, there they were, all three of them, sitting on three Camels. The desert was all around them.

In the distance, Knarf could make out an enormous object. It seemed to come to a point high up in the sky. It was made of blocks of stone.

"Mr Merlin! What is that?" he asked.

"It's one of the pyramids," said Mr Merlin. "We're in Egypt."

"Well," he said, "would you like to go to some other place?"

"Where?" asked Knarf.

"Would you like to be on an island floating around in the ocean?"

"Yes!" shouted Knarf and Handi.

Once more Mr Merlin snapped his fingers. The Camels and the sand and the pyramid disappeared like a burst bubble in another cloud of smoke. The air suddenly turned ice cold.

Now, when Knarf and Handi looked around, they saw they were riding on an iceberg. It was a real mountain of ice. All around them were ocean waves.

"I hope you feel warm enough," Mr Merlin said. "Here you'd better have some heavier clothes."

"We're home!" said Knarf.

Knarf and Handi discovered a crowd of Penguins.

In a flash, Knarf and Handi found themselves wearing thick fur coats.

Not far from where they were standing, Knarf and Handi discovered a whole crowd of Penguins playing.

"They live on this iceberg," Mr Merlin explained. "When the iceberg melts, they'll swim away and find themselves another one just as big."

"We would! We would!" shouted Knarf and Handi.

Mr Merlin smiled. He nodded. He snapped his fingers. There was a puff of smoke. The smoke cleared.

Knarf and Handi looked around.

"Yes!" said Handi. "We are in the pleasantest, most comfortable place in the whole world!"

"We're home!" said Knarf.

Dave Allen leads grand recovery by tailenders after early collapse

A brave innings of 55 by 24-year-old off-spinner Dave Allen led a magnificent recovery by England's tailenders, who put on 120 for the last four wickets against West Indies, on the second day of the fourth Test here today.

England's earlier batsmen failed dismally but Allen, batting at No. 9, helped the side to total 295, and by the close the West Indies had made 32 without loss.

Allen, who already in the series has come to England's rescue with the bat more than once, added 44 with Ted Dexter for the seventh wicket—39 with the injured Ken Barrington for the eighth wicket and a useful 27 with Brian Statham for the last wicket.

Fourth catch
When Allen was out, from the second ball after tea, he had hit five and scored fours. Allen provided wicketkeeper Gerry Alexander with his fourth catch of the innings and was paceman Wesly Hall's sixth victim.

Hall took six for 90, an appropriate reward for some hostile bowling in an otherwise undistinguished attack.

Earlier, from the moment when Colin Cowdrey was out to the day's third ball, England had lost four batsmen for the addition of 54 runs before lunch. In addition Barrington had retired hurt as he still felt the effects of a blow to his left arm from Hall just eight minutes earlier.

Barrington batted 20 minutes this morning without scoring and then retired for an X-ray, which showed that no bones were broken in his arm, which was sore and swollen.

He resumed, but Ted Dexter was seventh out with the total 219 and bravely resisted for a further 70 minutes, though adding only five in that time.

England, which lead 1-0 in the series, with two games drawn had looked to Cowdrey to build a big total. His early departure was quickly followed by the cheap dismissal of Mike Smith, Ray Illingworth and Roy Swetman, and the West Indies were well on top.

Stood firm
But Allen then stood firm. He let Dexter do most of the scoring in their seventh wicket stand, before taking us much of the morning to score the bowling as possible when Barrington batted.

Statham, who earlier received news from his wife of his son's illness and who may return home after the game, dominated the last wicket stand and was left unbeaten with 20 when Allen was out. Allen batted just under three hours.

The West Indies batted out the day quietly, though Conrad Hunte and two narrow escapes in one over from Statham, once from a sharp change to short-leg, and the other from a run-out.

Not until 15 minutes before the start today did Barrington decide he was fit to bat but after 20 minutes at the wicket, he decided he could not continue, and retired without having added to his overnight score.

Mike Smith replaced Barrington and fell leg before to the first ball he received from Hall.

Smith is rapidly gaining the reputation of being a poor starter. After his century in the first innings of the second Test, his last four innings in the series have been 12, 0, 10 and 0 again.

With the new ball due shortly, Alexander gave England a rest from pace after 45 minutes and Garfield Sobers replaced Chester Watson.

Collapses continues
It made no difference and England continued their collapse when Ray Illingworth was bowled by Sobers.

Illingworth who gave a sharp chance to Clyde Walcott in the slips before scoring, completely missed the ball when aiming to pull a long hop on the middle stump.

At the end of the first hour England had scored a mere 17 runs to offset their early disaster.

Sobers was given only the one over before Watson was recalled on the arrival of Roy Swetman at the wicket.

Swetman, like Barrington, is another English player who has shown a dislike of the West Indies fast bowling and it proved a wise decision by Alexander.

The England wicketkeeper was leg before to the last ball of Watson's first over which included two wides down the legside.

Swetman's only scoring stroke was a streaky four past the slips giving him 10 runs in his last five Test innings. In four of these innings he has batted lbw on three occasions to Watson.

Dexter had been batting carefully but realising that he was running out of partners he started to hit out.

Dave Allen stayed with Dexter until lunch when England were 200 for six.

Hall and Watson took the new ball immediately after lunch, but runs came quickly with Dexter keeping the fielders behind him with some powerful drives.

Though they had bowled for most of the morning session, the two bowlers maintained a good pace on the pitch, which was playing slightly faster than yesterday.

Allen played another useful supporting innings, but with 44 led to his dismissal. The plucky tailender edged a delivery from Hall to give Alexander his fourth catch behind the stumps, and his 19th of the series.

Hall finished with six for 90

—a fine analysis which he had carried on an unhelpful pitch.

He was the only dangerous looking West Indies bowler.

The home side were left with 45 minutes batting.

Jim Parks, the tourists' emergency replacement who was added to the party at the weekend, substituted for Human Subba Row when the West Indies began their innings and Barrington took his place at first slip as usual.

Two chances

Conrad Hunte and Easton McMorris quickly took the total to double figures.

McMorris turned Statham to the square-leg boundary and Hunte gilded Trueman to leg for another four.

England lost two chances in one over from Statham to dismiss the dangerous Hunte. First Trueman missed a sharp chance at backward short-leg and two balls later Pular might have run out the opener if he had picked up cleanly, while holding at square-leg.

At the close West Indies were 32 without loss, the best opening series—stand for them so far in the series.—Reuter.

Successful get-together held between Softball Association and the Press

By OLLY VAS

The softball column today deliberately bypasses the customary predictions on how different teams will fare in the weekend league games as there are more important issues to be aired.

In recent months and on more than one occasion the administration of the game by the controlling body, the HK Softball Association, has given rise to much dissatisfaction both on and off the field — so much so that a 'defeatist' attitude has been adopted by many who were previously giving grand support to the game.

Mutual co-operation between the contributors to the HKSA was sadly lacking and in an effort to achieve a satisfactory solution to the matter a press conference was held recently at the office of the HKSA's spokesman, Harold Winglee.

Invited

The softball writers were invited to lay their cards on the table instead of resorting to pen and paper and the resultant but inevitable battle of words in the sports columns which in the long run contributed nothing of value to both sides or to the game itself. Throughout the proceedings a spirit of full co-operation prevailed with all parties not mincing any words and showing appreciation of each other's points of view.

The Association's attention was drawn to the fact that there appeared to be some uncertainty on the part of securers and implies as to their responsibilities in the discharge of their duties. The Association then gave an assurance that the system of resting officials before assigning them to duties would be re-introduced next year.

The question of proper procedure in strict accordance with the Rules and Bye-Laws of the game was also brought up. Here the Association signified its intention of making an annual study and revision of the Rules and Bye-Laws where necessary to eliminate any possible ambiguities and subsequent misinterpretation.

The next subject to be discussed was the basis of selection in the year's International Series. This had led to some absurd situations and it was agreed that tighter regulations in the Series would have to be framed and placed before the Council for approval.

MVP voting

The most important matter of all, the voting for the Most Valuable Player awards in the three softball divisions each year, was then reviewed. Pending Council's confirmation, a newly devised system will place the onus on the three softball writers. One of them will act as co-ordinator and will be responsible for communicating information to the other two.

The present system involves the submission of the names of suitable candidates by team managers whereas the revised plan shifts this responsibility to the Press contributors who

CRUISE LINER ARRIVES ON WORLD TRIP

A beautiful Australian girl, 18-year-old Hazel Holloman, is coming to Hong Kong for a short holiday. Hazel comes from Strathfield, Sydney. She will stay here a week.

She is the winner of a newspaper competition—the Daily Mirror's lovely legs contest—and she was picked from among 1,000 contestants. The contest was organised in association with the Rank Film, "Ferry to Hongkong."

Valued at more than £750, Hazel's main prize is a week's holiday for two to Hongkong, including:

- Return air flights by Cathay Pacific Oriental Jet Service.
- Free hotel accommodation.
- $500 spending money.
- A sumptuous cheongsam.

The Swedish American Line 21,140-ton luxury ship Kungsholm arrived this morning with some 300 tourists on a round-the-world cruise.

The passengers, mostly Americans, rushed down the Daily Mirror's lovely legs gangway as soon as the liner docked at Kowloon Wharf, anxious to begin the programme of their two and a half days visit in Hongkong.

Tours of the Island and the New Territories have been arranged for the passengers.

Regiment band

The Hongkong Regiment Band on the quayside welcomed the tourists to the Colony.

The 88-day cruise is the Kungsholm's fifth to the Far East and it is her fourth visit to the Colony last April.

366 passengers

Originally, the Kungsholm had 366 passengers on the present cruise from New York. About 70 of them left the ship at Singapore and Bangkok and flew to Hongkong. They will rejoin the ship either here or in Japan.

The passengers represent practically every state of America.

Consuls

Mr Miguel Roman Perez has been provisionally recognised as Consul-General for the Republic of Dominica at Hongkong, the Government Gazette notified today.

Mr Fritz Cordt has been accorded formal recognition as Vice-Consul for the Federal Republic of Germany at Hongkong; and Mr Uno Erik Pleilainen has been accorded formal recognition as Vice-Consul for Finland in London with jurisdiction including Hongkong, the Gazette added.

Urban Council

Messrs Li Fook-shu, Fung Hon-chu and Wilfred S. B. Wong have been appointed to be Members of the Urban Council for a period of four years, the Government Gazette notified today.

Car firm executive to visit Italy

A young executive in Hongkong's motor trade will leave next Tuesday for a six-month study tour in the Fiat factory at Torino in northern Italy.

Mr Dennis Shea, 23-year-old General Manager of Regent Motors, Hongkong, will study the various business aspects of the trade in Italy under the sponsorship of the Fiat factory.

Still a bachelor, Dennis was educated at the Diocesan Boys' School.

When he left the school he joined the firm of his father, Mr William A. Shea.

He will leave by Swissair for Geneva where he will attend the Geneva International Motor Show for five days before going to Italy.

Resignation

The relinquishment of appointment of Mr G. M. Goldsack as Senior Superintendent of Police (Auxiliary) has been approved, the Government Gazette notified today.

Mr C. A. Wright ceased to be a member of the Port Executive Committee consequent upon the return of Mr G. R. Ross, the Government Gazette notified today.

New member of public services commission

Car firm executive to visit Italy

Mr J. Dickson Leach has been appointed a member of the Public Services Commission with effect from April 1, 1959, it is announced in today's Government Gazette.

Mr Dickson Leach has been acting as a temporary member since December 1, 1958, firstly during the absence of Mr E. R. Childe and then of Mr J. R. Jones, who has now resigned for medical reasons.

Mr Dickson Leach, who is General Manager of the Union Insurance Society of Canada Ltd., was first connected with the Commission in 1956 when he was a temporary member for a few months.

Soldier fined

A soldier, Jack Horsfield, 21, was fined $40 by Central Magistrate Mr Derek Coss this morning for indecent exposure in Jackson Road outside the Supreme Court at 12.55 a.m. today.

A 59-year-old woman, Wong Sze of no fixed address, who pleaded not guilty to aiding and abetting Horsfield in the commission of the offence, was discharged when Sub-Inspect Yip Tai-yau offered no evidence against her.

Executive Council

Mr Kwoi Chan ceased to be a member of the Executive Council consequent upon the return of Dr S. N. Chau, the Government Gazette notified today.

He was promoted Cadet Officer Class I on April 1, 1958. On return from leave last year, he joined the Labour Department as Deputy Commissioner and will be Commissioner of Labour from March 14.

Mr H. M. Hetherington has acted as Deputy Financial Secretary almost continuously since May, 1955, before which he had been an Assistant Director of Commerce and Industry for some years.

He was promoted Cadet Officer Class I on April 1, 1958. On return from leave last year, he joined the Labour Department as Deputy Commissioner and will be Commissioner of Labour from March 14.

The current appointments of the officers promoted to Administrative Officer Staff Grade C are:

Mr T. D. Sorby, Establishment Officer, Colonial Secretariat.

Mr M. D. A. Clinton, Deputy Financial Secretary (Finance).

Mr D. C. O. Luddington, Administrative Secretary, Police Force.

Mr J. M. Lightbody, Assistant Colonial Secretary, Lands

YUAN Ling-yuk, the "Mary Pickford" of the Chinese screen, has enacted her last role. It was that of a woman who died to protect her lover from disgrace.

Six hours earlier she attended a big party in Shanghai. She was recently involved in adultery proceedings in which her husband cited a wealthy tea merchant as co-responsible. The trial was to have commenced an hour after her funeral today. Thoughts of reconciliation came too late to the grief-stricken husband Chang Tu-min, who wept as he embraced her coffin before it was lowered into the grave.

An ugly incident in which it is alleged players and spectators took part in a free for all fight on the Kowloon Football ground on Saturday, occurred after the match between South China "A" and Club de Recreio.

It started when one of the Chinese spectators got into an argument with several Portuguese players.

The Police were quickly on the scene and the crowd dispersed and four men were arrested.

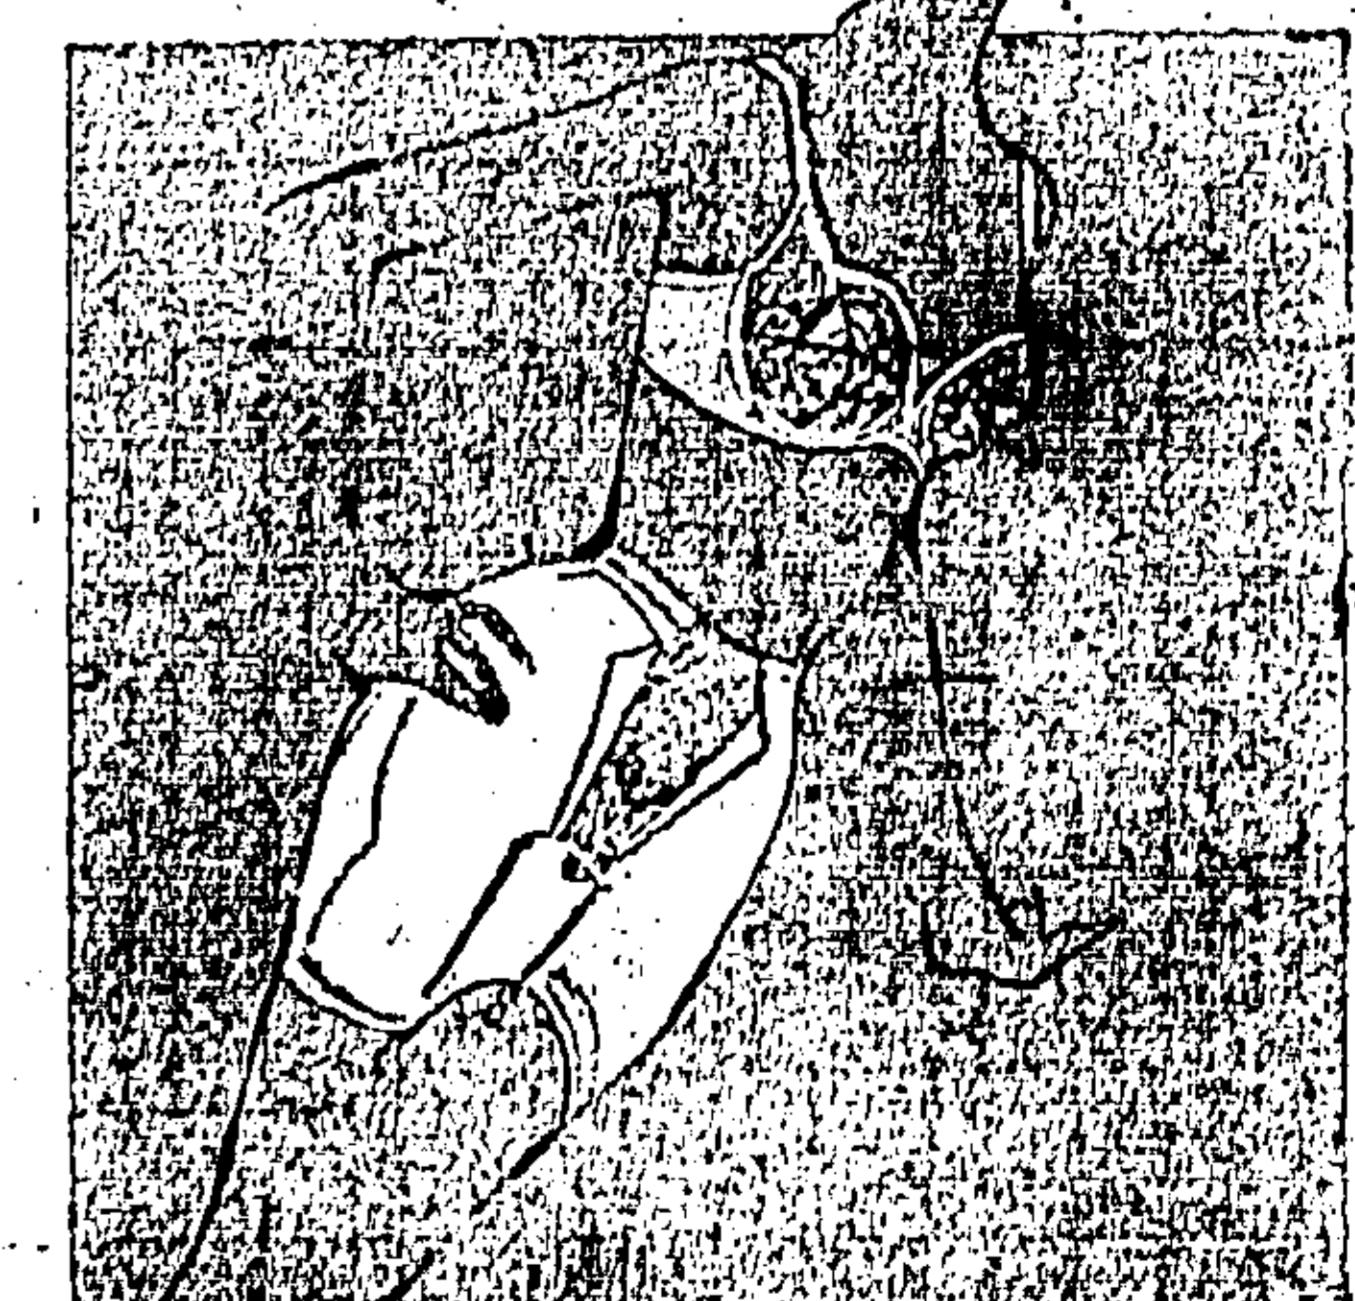

South China beat Recreio by two goals to one.

An announcement of interest to many residents in Hongkong and Shanghai is that of the marriage last January in Manchester of Miss Janet Beith and Mr Roger Birley Melland. The bride is the niece of Mr B. D. F. Beith well known here a few years ago as manager of Jardine Matheson's and who is at present managing the same firm in Shanghai. She is also the niece of Mr Ian Hay (John Hay Beith), the well known novelist. (Mr Beith's death was reported in the China Mail earlier this year).
